Hopi Code Talker Recognition Day

Louella Nahsonhoya
Hopi Tutuveni

The 2017 Hopi Code Talker Recognition Day, was held on Friday, April 21 at the Hopi Veterans Memorial Center in Kykotsmovi, AZ.

The event began with the Posting of Colors by the Hopi High School JROTC and the National Anthem was sung by Tiffany Bahnimptewa. Kellen Polingyumtewa played the TAPS and 2016-2017 Miss Hopi CiAnna Sakeva gave a Welcome to everyone at the event.

Each year a Code Talker is recognized as the Featured Hopi Code Talker of the year and this year's honor went to Hopi Code Talker Frank Carl Chapella, Bear Clan from the Tewa Village of First Mesa Arizona. Chapella was born on October 18, 1906 and was the second oldest of three brothers and two sisters.

He attended grade school in Polacca and Kykotsmovi and graduated from Phoenix Indian High School. After that time, Mr. Chapella was drafted into the U.S. Army on June 11, 1942 where he would later be selected to become a Hopi Code Talker. His job was a low speed radio operator with the 81st Division, 323rd Infantry Regiment, in the Asiatic-Pacific theatre of operations. Chapella's military records state he sent and received coded messages from battalions, then decoded the messages for regimental headquarter commanders.

After World War II ended, Mr. Chapella was honorably discharged from the U.S. Army on December 21, 1945, in the rank of Private First Class. PFC Chapella was awarded the Bronze Star Medal, Army Good Conduct Medal, American Campaign Medal, Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal, World War II Victory Medal, Philippine Liberation Medal, Combat Infantry Badge and World War II Honorable Service Lapel.

Mr. Chapella returned home and married Elida Shula, with whom he had three daughters, six sons, and many grandchildren and great grandchildren.

He worked with the Bureau of Indian Affairs-Land Operations for many years until his retirement. He remained active in his cultural and ceremonial activities and enjoyed farming, ranching and spending time with his family. Mr. Chapella passed away on May 26, 1984, at the age of 77. On November 20, 2013, his spouse was bestowed the Congressional Hopi Code Talker Silver Medal, in Washington, D.C.

On May 21, 1941, three Hopi men from the Village of Hotevilla, AZ, Roger (Comahletzewa) Nasevama, Elmer Seequaptewa and Paul (Johonet) Sewemaenewa were found guilty by the U.S. District Court for failing to register for Selective Service. In addition to these 3 men, Leslie Kootshongsie, Reuben Choykoychi and Fred Pakonva, also from Hotevilla, were found guilty days later for the same reasons (Arizona Republic, 1941).

The six Hopi men were being unjustly punished for their beliefs and most notably for adhering to a way of life which consisted of not taking up arms against anyone. These Hopi men were trapped between two worlds, reprimanded by a society that didn't understand them.

Student protest and lock down at Hopi High School

Stan Bindell
Hopi Tutuveni

Hopi Jr/Sr High School had a protest and lockdown April 18.

Approximately two dozen students protested on behalf of English teacher Myles Beam who was recently placed on administrative leave. The students were protesting in the area of the football field.

"We want Beam," the students continually chanted.

Some students also chanted "We want Dushon." Dushon Monongye, academic counselor for sophomores, juniors and seniors, was also placed on administrative leave, but she has since been returned to duty.

During the protest, the school went into lockdown because someone reported that a student may have a weapon. The police searched for a weapon and when they were unable to find a weapon the lockdown was lifted.

Due to the lockdown and the protest, students were sent home at about 11:40 a.m. along with a letter explaining the situation to the parents.

Hopi Police Lt. Paul Sidney talked to the staff at HJSHS to explain the lockdown. He said the call about the weapon provided no information about names, ages or descriptions.

"We did a protective sweep while in the lockdown," he said.

Sidney told the staff that they need to be patient during the lockdown because it takes time to sweep the building. Several teachers and students had bathroom issues. Neither students nor teachers are allowed to leave their rooms to use the bathroom during a lockdown. One teacher who left his class to use the bathroom was detained briefly because he didn't have any credentials on him, such as the school ID.

Sidney said some became lackadaisical and didn't appear to be taking the situation seriously. He said laughing and loud talking drew attention to some classes which wouldn't have been good if an active shooter was in the building.

"Please work with your facilities (department). We are dealing with lives and students," he told the staff.

Sidney said once a lockdown is called that the lockdown takes precedent over state, federal and tribal laws regarding amendment rights.

"That's because lives are at stake," he said.

Sidney said everyone supports peaceful demonstration, but once a lockdown is called that the chairman and vice chairman's offices had to be informed.

On April 21, interim superintendent Alban Naha called an assembly where he told the students that he understands the support and love they have for their teachers. However, he said governing board policies have to be followed because that helps run the school and keeps everybody accountable including himself, parents, teachers and students.

The Hopi Conscientious Objector from P1

They were found guilty because they were unable to demonstrate a creditable church membership and attachment to an American concept of theology. Hence, the United States Government did not recognize the Hopi religion as being a legitimate religious practice.

The Hopi have always been an agricultural and peaceful people. Status and honor in war has never been a part of Hopi culture, although the Hopi have had to deal with its share of war throughout their history. Hopi, as a culture, is based on unwritten laws that are used to guide Hopi people to sustain and live the proper way of life. The Hopi Way of Life has helped the Hopi people maintain a strong grip on its culture. The laws of the Hopi Way are set forth at birth and are incorporated into the daily teachings. The Hopi people are different, in the sense that each person has a place in Hopi society and plays a role in the Hopi Way of Life. However, each Hopi individual has the privilege to choose if they want to accept and follow the Hopi Way.

Roger Nasevama spent nine years of his young adult life at the Catalina Honor Camp in the Santa Catalina Mountains north of Tucson, Arizona. There, as a Federal prisoner, he helped construct a 24 mile road up the mountains. He does not understand why those years from 1941 to 1949 were taken away from him for abiding by the Hopi Way. While others who were sent to the Catalina Honor camp for similar reasons did their time and were released, Roger remained at the camp not knowing if he would ever see his family again. When asked what he remembers most about the Catalina Honor Camp, Roger said, "Macaroni and cheese. We practically ate it every single day and I will not eat a single bite till the day I die." Roger was released from the Catalina Honor Camp on July 4th, 1949.

Danielle Albert Speaks to Students at Hopi High School

Miss Indian Arizona State University 1st Attendant Danielle Albert gets the sign of approval from Hopi High students Steven Baker and Jacob Poleviyaoma.

Stan Bindell
Hopi Tutuveni

Danielle Albert, Miss ASU Indian 1st Attendant, spoke to Hopi High students about using being the only Native American in their college classes to their advantage.

Albert, who comes from Old Oraibi, spoke to several sessions during the Hopi High Youth Summit April 27 at the high school.

Albert spoke during the sessions on "Help! I don't know what to do after high school!" The other presenters during that session included CiAnna Sakeva, Carrie Sakeva and Tracy Honani.

Albert, who graduated from Flagstaff High School, said when she arrived at ASU she found she was the only Native American in most of her classes. She said she used that to her advantage because when other students asked where she was from she was able to tell them about her tribe and culture.

Albert was also the only Native American on the ASU cheerleading squad and earned All-American cheerleading status, which paid off with a trip to London.

"That was a big leadership position for ASU," she said. Albert, who is Hopi and Navajo, also serves on an ASU program that goes out into the community to talk about education.

Albert was the only Native American cheerleader when she was at Flagstaff High School and that helped her earn scholarships for her leadership abilities. She obtained scholarships from the Hopi Tribe, Hopi Education Endowment Fund and ASU. She said the scholarships even covered her food and rent. She said students should apply for scholarships even if they are only $200 because everything helps.

"Be proud of who you are; you are unique," she tells her fellow Native American students.

Albert said being the only Native American in class can be unsettling.

"You don't know who to talk to or who to relate to," she said. "I told my story about who I was. A lot were interested about our language and culture.

Albert hopes to earn a BA in special events management and communication.

"A lot of students are worried about getting home for dances and being home with family," she said about native students when they go off to college.

Her message is that native students should pursue higher education through their cultural engagement.

"They should use what they learn in culture for education to bring people together," she said.

For example, as someone who plans to get a degree in special events management she could bring people together for block parties or sporting events such as the Super Bowl.

Once she arrived at ASU, Albert made a point of knowing her counselors so they could help her when needed.

"Don't be afraid to use your resources," she said.

Albert's clans are Parrot and Kachina.

"Every organization has policies," he said.

Naha said that nobody has been fired and added that students have a voice to share their concerns, but it has to be done by following policies. He said he can help the students to voice their concerns even if their concerns are against him.

"We are not trying to squelch your opinions or concerns," he said.

Naha said the lockdown was real and that once a lockdown is called that safety comes first. He said law enforcement investigated and found the weapon call unsubstantiated.

"Once law enforcement was called in it was in their hands," he said.

Naha said he encourages students to voice their opinion, but in the proper way.

"There are two sides to every story," he said. "If you have questions come see us because our doors are always open."

Military Sexual/Harassment Trauma (MST)

By: Sharon Fredericks, Counselor
Veterans Outreach, Dept. of Veterans Affairs

According to a recent release from the department of Veterans Administration, 40,000 military women were deployed during Desert Shield and Desert Storm and 280,000 women have served in Afghanistan or Iraq (E-rock) since September 2011. Many of those women served consecutive tours. Incidentally MST can happen to men too.

Military assault: 1 in 4 women in the military are sexually assaulted or traumatized and 1 in 100 men are assaulted too.

Women join the Armed Forces for various reasons. Some might think "it's their choice, they shouldn't have joined" This is NOT a valid criticism. NO ONE goes into ANY job to be harmed, in civilian life too. After the event, it becomes your secret. It may stay in that place for a long time, years.

The American Indian is no stranger to war and trauma. Throughout history we have been at war, with the U.S. government and with neighboring Tribes/Nations. Today, we live in peace but almost all of us have volunteered to bear arms.

Returning home was/is always a great feeling. But after the feeling has worn off, we're faced with what we need to do to support ourselves and our families. We realize readjusting to civilian life is not always easy.

After being home from your service, did your family say, "You've changed!" It's true, our closest friends and family are the first to observe that "something" about you changed.

PTS (Post traumatic stress) due to sexual trauma, whether it's rape, assault or harassment can alter the way you see yourself and the world. It seems that everything around you becomes a threat to your safety. It presents itself in many different ways. Let's say a returning veteran lives today with his/her family, extended family within his/her community. They are looking to future plans. Then one day, a man whom they just met, maybe a relative who may be happy to see them again comes too close or makes a comment that is too forward. Everything in an instant becomes unsafe. The veteran may put up a shield, like a stand offish attitude, then without comment, leaves. After getting away, they might feel anger. In PTS there might be an intenseness that can be identified as helplessness. This helplessness is learned in the trauma itself. Something in the meeting of the man was the TRIGGER whether the veteran was aware of what it was.

The Trigger is something that that plays on our senses. It can be a sight, a sound, or a smell. Our bodies have been "triggered", and we are back to a memory of the trauma, maybe several. In some cases, a veteran can feel it is actually happening, we call that a flashback. Every person has their own way of feeling stress. In traumatic events there is intenseness. Some get headaches, clenched jaws, self-medicate with substances, have nightmares or poor sleep. After, there are other avoidance behaviors which are usually recognized by your family or close one. Your child might think, "ok, dad or mom is mad again, I better be quiet or leave them alone." They can learn your behaviors over time too.

If nothing else you can use education about PTS to gain awareness. "We can change the effects of trauma and memory. It isn't the memory we change. It's the impact of that memory on us."

We are the Veterans Outreach with the Department of Veteran Affairs, in Hotevilla, Arizona. Located across from the Hotevilla Store. MST counseling is free to all veterans, men and woman and National Guardsmen who were activated for war, regardless of type of discharge.

VA women's hotline is 1-855-women. National suicide prevention lifeline 800-273-8255 (talk). Emergency, 911.

I am conducting PTS education on Tuesday's 10-12 for women, every week. Wednesday's for men at 10-12. Please call if you can participate. Questions can be directed to Sharon Fredericks, 928-734-5166.

Car Seat Safety Class Coming Back to Hopi

Greg Sehongva, Public Health Technician
Hopi Dept. of Health and Human Services

Phoenix Children's Center for Family Health and Safety and Hopi Department of Health and Human Services will be hosting two "Car Seat Safety classes on Wednesday, June 14, 2017 at 1:00pm and 3:30pm, at the Wellness Center Conference Room. The 90 minute class will include how to keep you and your family safe on every trip.

Earlier this year, Angelica Baker and Blanca Villasenor from Phoenix Children's Center for Family Health and Safety stated that last year's Buckle Up for Life event on Hopi was one of their most successful events and they are excited to return again this year. During the September 2016 event, over 100 families took the class and received a free child safety seat. The Hopi Department of Health and Human Services hopes for continued success. The Child Passenger Safety Program at Phoenix Children's Hospital is generously sponsored by Western Refining.

Attendees of the class will be eligible to receive a FREE car seat(s) for their child(ren). Seats are available for: expecting parents, grandparents, guardians and caregivers. The Hopi Department of Health and Human Services will be collecting the height and weight for children during April 21, 2017 – May 12, 2017, afterwards the appropriate car seats will be ordered for participating children. After each class, a distribution of car seats will take place at the HVMC parking lot.

There are requirements to participate in the class:

- Participants must reside on the Hopi Reservation (not necessarily a Hopi Tribal Member)
- Families that participated in last year's event will not be eligible for this event

- Only one child safety seat will be provided for each child, no exceptions
- If you do not attend the class, you will not be eligible to receive a car seat during the distribution event
- PLEASE PROVIDE YOUR CHILDREN'S CURRENT WEIGHT AND HEIGHT MEASUREMENTS BEFORE MAY 12, 2017! (Providing accurate measurements is important, so the appropriate seat is ordered for your child)

For WIC participants, the WIC Program, may have the most recent measurements for your child. Measurements may also be taken at the Hopi Health Care Center. To register for the class, contact the Department of Health and Human Services at 928-734-3404 or in person in the two-story Hopi Tribe Administrative Building.

HEEF looks to award $20,000 for Community Project Grants

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Hopi Education Endowment Fund
Contact: Ryan Tafoya

Kykotsmovi Village, AZ - Around this time each spring, The Hopi Education Endowment Fund (HEEF) accepts proposals for its IMAGINE Grant program. IMAGINE grants are awarded by the HEEF to fund Hopi or non-Hopi organizations/individuals looking to provide a service within the Hopi community. The HEEF began accepting proposals for 2017 IMAGINE grants on April 10th, and is seeking to award a total of $20,000 this year.

While a large portion of funds awarded by the HEEF are for scholarships for post-secondary students, HEEF Executive Director LuAnn Leonard stated, "IMAGINE grants are unique in that they are used to fund programs that provide education for all ages of Hopi students, from 3 to 103." Since 2004, the HEEF has funded nearly $150,000 to over 20 different programs and organizations including Hopi Lavayi, Tewa Energy, Adventures 4 Hopi, and Natwanhoyam Tunatya. Prior IMAGINE grants have funded both pre-existing programs and programs in the early development stages. "HEEF IMAGINE grants allow a creative idea to become a working project that can have a real, lasting impact in the Hopi community," Leonard stated.

Grants are awarded to programs that provide educational activities that fit the mission of the HEEF. Desired characteristics of IMAGINE Grants programs include cultural relevance, grassroots capacity building, effectiveness, transferability, and sustainability. Programs must take place within June 1 and December 31, 2017 to be eligible. Individual program award amounts will vary based on proposed program budgets and the number of programs approved.

IMAGINE Grant applications can be downloaded from the HEEF website (www.hopieducationfund.org) or picked up at the HEEF office in Kykotsmovi. Completed applications must be received or postmarked by 5:00p.m. Friday, May 11, 2017.

Protect Yourself from Plague

Madeline Sahneyah
Public Health Compliance Officer
Hopi Department of Health and Human Services

Hopi land is located above the 4,500 feet elevation in Northern Arizona and plague naturally occurs at this elevation. Plague is caused by the bacterial Yersinia pestis or Y.pestis and spread through the bite of an infected flea. Plague can also infect humans and their pets. Residents in our communities can become exposed to this bacterium by petting dogs or cats that may have fleas and by touching or skinning infected animals (such as prairie dogs, squirrels and rabbits) or getting too close to rodent burrows or nests. Plague can also be spread through direct contact with blood or tissues of infected rodents, rabbits or other animals.

Bubonic plague is the most common form of plague. It usually occurs after a bite from an infected flea with the person becoming sick 1-6 days after being bitten. The key symptom of bubonic plague is a swollen and painful lymph node in the groin, armpit or neck area.

Other symptoms include fever, chills, headache and extreme exhaustion. If it is not treated early, the bacteria can spread to other parts of the body and cause septicemic or pneumonic plague.

Septicemic plague occurs when plague bacteria multiply in the bloodstream. It is more severe and causes bleeding into the skin and other tissues. The skin and tissues may also turn black and die, especially on the fingers, toes, and nose

Pneumonic plague occurs when the person breathes in infectious droplets that infect the lungs. It can also develop from untreated bubonic or septicemic plague that can spread to the lungs. Symptoms include high fever, chills, cough, difficulty breathing and coughing up bloody mucus. It is possible for pneumonic plague to be spread from person to person through infectious droplets. This human to human transmission typically requires direct and close contact with a person who has pneumonic plague and is very rare. Pneumonic plague is almost always fatal if it is not treated right away.

To protect yourself against plague, avoid contact with wild rodents and domestic animals that may have fleas. The weather is warmer and more time is spent outdoors and in the fields. Protect yourself and family by staying away from rodent burrows and use insect repellent to keep the fleas away.

PLAGUE IS A SERIOUS ILLNESS. IF EXPERIENCING ANY SYMPTOMS, SEE A HEALTH CARE PROVIDER IMMEDIATELY. PLAGUE CAN BE TREATED SUCCESSFULLY WITH ANTIBIOTICS BUT A PERSON MUST BE TREATED RIGHT AWAY TO AVOID SERIOUS COMPLICATIONS OR DEATH.

Keep Hopi moving to prevent diabetes - 7 Steps toward prevention

Terri Honanie, Diabetes Prevention Educator - Hopi Special Diabetes Program

1. MOVE MORE. Get up, get out of the house, and get moving. Clean the yard, clear the fields, walk the trails or play ball outside with the children.
2. MAKE HEALTHY FOOD CHOICES. Focus on eating less, use portion control, and eat smaller servings. Try to have a serving of fruits and/or vegetables with each meal. Choose whole grains, brown rice, and oatmeal. Cut down on the fried foods, try baking or grilling vs. frying. Drink water with each meal.
3. TAKE OFF SOME WEIGHT. By losing 10 pounds, you can decrease your chances of getting diabetes. Healthy food choices + moving more = weight loss.
4. SET S.M.A.R.T. GOALS YOU CAN MEET

- S- specific, small: I'm going to walk today
 - M- measurable, meaningful: I'll walk 10 min
 - A- attainable, achievable: I can walk outside my house
 - R- realistic: I can walk anywhere
 - T- timely, trackable: I'll walk fast and go as far as I can for 10 minutes. Next week I'll walk for 15 minutes.
5. RECORD YOUR PROGRESS. Write down what you eat and drink. Write down your workouts, what you did and for how long. Keeping a log will help you keep focused on your goals. It is also great to take pictures to capture your progress.
 6. SEEK HELP. You don't have to prevent diabetes alone. Ask your family and friends to join you in making healthy food choices and becoming physically active together. Starting a healthy active lifestyle will take you on many new adventures where you will meet new people that can give tips and encouragement.

7. KEEP AT IT. Uma nahongvitotani!! Making small changes in the beginning is hard, changing bad habits and replacing them with good habits will be hard. If you get off track, start again! You can do it, dig deep!

The Hopi Special Diabetes Program offers community education presentations and demonstrations on nutrition and diabetes prevention to encourage starting a healthy, active lifestyle. Be on the lookout for presentations scheduled in your Village or Community. For information, call 928-734-3432.

Dyslexia Handbook Available To Support Families and Teachers

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Arizona Department of Education

Phoenix, Ariz. – Arizona Superintendent of Public Instruction Diane Douglas today unveiled The Dyslexia Handbook, a new resource available for families and teachers to help identify and support students with Dyslexia.

The development of this handbook was the result of recent legislation sponsored by State Representative Jill Norgaard (R) LD-18 in House Bill 2202, permitting the Arizona Department of Education (ADE) to create a resource to educate families and teachers about dyslexia.

“When I’ve toured the state during my We Are Listening Tour for the last two years, I’ve heard overwhelmingly that parents need more resources to help their children succeed,” said Superintendent Douglas. “I am appreciative of Representative Norgaard’s leadership on this issue to bring together parents and education organizations from around the state to collaborate with ADE and develop this important new resource.”

To celebrate this handbook launch, Representative Norgaard presented to the State Board of Education (SBE) about this new resource available and shared her next action to help decode dyslexia, which includes an increase of professional development opportunities for classroom teachers in the early identification of dyslexia. By her side at today’s SBE presentation were the many parents and education organizations that helped develop this new resource.

“I am very honored to have been a part of this team over the past nine months,” said Representative Norgaard. “This handbook will provide teachers and parents with a great tool to be able to decode dyslexia at an early age, and to provide focused intervention and resources to improve our literacy rates. I look forward to the success that this effort will yield.”

Improved student and parent resources were also priorities of Superintendent Douglas’ 2017 AZ Kids Can’t Wait!, an education plan to help shape education policy based on citizen feedback, which is available at www.azed.gov/beheardAZ.

Access to the new dyslexia technical assistance handbook to support families and teachers, as well as additional literacy resources, can be found at www.azed.gov/dyslexia.

Superintendent Diane Douglas “If we pay them, they will teach”

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE
Arizona Department of Education

Phoenix, Ariz. – Arizona Superintendent of Public Instruction Diane Douglas today unveiled a proposal to permanently extend and expand Proposition 301 monies to a full 1 percent, which if supported by voters would result in an immediate 11 percent raise for teachers and $100 million for school facilities.

“My proposal would generate $400 million annually for teacher salaries and school buildings,” Douglas stated. “By setting aside the majority of this funding for teacher salaries, we will provide close to an 11 percent raise for teachers in the first year, which means nearly $5,000 more in take-home pay. Using the remaining funding for school facilities can help address another looming crisis, which is the depreciation of our school buildings and infrastructure.”

Thursday’s announcement was shared in Douglas’ presentation to the Arizona Business Education Coalition (ABEC), a group of Arizona business and education leaders committed to helping develop effective public education policy. Her announcement comes on the cusp of the Superintendent’s next annual statewide We Are Listening Tour, which is where these two critical issues were repeatedly brought to her attention.

“Only an overarching vision and decisive action will allow us to solve our current education crises, the first of which is that teachers need to be paid more,” Douglas shared with the ABEC audience. “I thank the Governor and Legislature for making teacher pay an important part of their budget discussions this session, and I look forward to working with them to take this next step once a budget is finalized.”

Douglas’ proposal would dedicate $300 million per year to teacher salaries and $100 million per year to school capital repairs in the first two years. In years three and beyond, the plan calls for $350 million per year dedicated to teacher salaries and sets aside $50 million per year for school capital.

Douglas also expressed support for the restructuring of current Proposition 301 funding to allocate even more money for teacher salaries.

For more information and updates about the proposal, visit www.azed.gov.

Navajo language and culture class taught at Hopi Jr./Sr. High School

Stan Bindell
Hopi Tutuveni

Cornelia Yazzie has the unique task of teaching the Navajo language and culture at Hopi Jr/Sr High School (HJSHS).

About ten percent of the students at HJSHS are Navajo, some full-blooded and some part Navajo. Yazzie teaches her students about the four directions, the sacred mountains, how to write short stories in Navajo, Navajo history, their family trees and to do interviews in Navajo of their classmates and staff members.

Yazzie said 17 years ago then-Principal Glenn Gilman asked her to teach Navajo at HJSHS.

"I was just a teacher aide at the time. I am thankful to him and (Principal) David Herbert," she said.

Yazzie said when parents come to parent-teacher conferences they complement her that their children can speak Navajo with them and their elders.

"I want the kids to be able to speak Navajo and know their foundation, know where they come from," she said. "This isn't just for themselves, but for their future so their kids can speak Navajo. I don't want the language to fade away."

Yazzie said the Navajo language is important because even when students go off to the big cities they will return to their culture.

"Everything we do is all about culture. We come from the emergence stories and that is shown in the Navajo rugs they weave," she said.

Yazzie said most of the students she works with stay in her program for three years. This makes them eligible for the Chief Manuelito Scholarship which covers all their tuition when they go to college. She said her program averages about one Manuelito Scholarship per year.

"By the end of the second year in my classes they know what I'm talking about. It's like their taking steps to learn. I just wish I had more students," she said.

Yazzie has about 60 students in her classes altogether now. Her top students include Raymond Robinson, Tamara Wilson and Shayla Dashner in the advanced class; Stacy Charley in the beginning class; and Kelly Johnson and Amber LaBahe in the beginning class. Some of her best students from past years include Kiara Beaudette, Kyle Yeslith and Kendra Tacheene.

Yazzie learned the language mostly from her parents.

Shayla Dashner said she joined the Navajo class so she could learn the language and teach it to her siblings.

"I learned how to introduce myself, tell time and colors in Navajo," she said.

Dashner, a junior, said Yazzie helps her stay on task and not make mistakes when she speaks Navajo. Her advice to students who join the class is to keep up with the work and ask for help when they need it.

"I like the kids in the class because they help me and we've become friends," she said.

Dashner said the class could be improved by having more topics, but she is thrilled that the class gives her a chance at obtaining the Manuelito Scholarship.

"Heck Yeah, I want the Manuelito Scholarship," she said.

Dashner wants to become a dentist or orthodontist. But for now she speaks Navajo at home with her mom, grandma and grandpa.

Kelly Johnson, a junior, said she took the Navajo class because she is afraid that the language is dying.

"I want to be able to teach my little sister and siblings, and the friends I meet so the language doesn't die," she said. "The language is part of the culture so it plays a big part in being Dineh."

Johnson said she has learned how to describe colors and numbers in Navajo, how to pronounce words, say clans and how to write in Navajo.

"It's important to preserve the culture. I want to impress others by introducing myself in Navajo," she said.

Johnson said Yazzie helps her with pronunciations, but also with life lessons.

"She tells me what to do and what not to do, and how to write stories in Navajo," she said. "I listen to Miss Yazzie and the elders. They are supposed to teach us. Part of this class is speaking to the elders."

Johnson has been in the class for three years and she said her classmates have become family.

"I've improved my native tongue and I know how to talk to elders," she said.

Johnson also wants the Manuelito Scholarship.

"I want to be able to represent the Navajo Nation. My mom is Navajo and I want her to be proud of me," she said. "I speak Navajo at home with my mom."

Sen. John McCain introduces Bill to expand amber alert system on Native American Reservations

U.S. Senate

Washington, D.C. – U.S. Senator John McCain (R-AZ) recently introduced the AMBER Alert in Indian Country Act of 2017, legislation that would expand the AMBER Alert child abduction warning system on Native American reservations by clarifying that Indian tribes are eligible for Department of Justice (DOJ) grants that help assemble AMBER Alert systems for law enforcement agencies.

The DOJ currently operates a pilot program that offers AMBER Alert training services to Native American tribes. The AMBER Alert in Indian Country Act of 2017 would make that initiative permanent and enhance DOJ oversight of how the grants are used. The legislation would also reauthorize the DOJ grant program that assists state and local governments in developing and implementing AMBER Alert communication plans. These communication plans are used by law enforcement agencies to expedite child abduction alerts to the public. The bill would also require the DOJ to perform a needs-assessment of AMBER Alert capabilities on Indian reservations.

"Last year, the Navajo community was devastated by the abduction and murder of 11-year old Ashlynnne Mike," said Senator McCain. "In that high-profile case, authorities did not issue an AMBER Alert for Ashlynnne until the day after family members reported her abduction. According to data produced by the Federal Bureau of Investigation, there are 7,724 American Indian children listed as missing in the United States. We must give Indian tribes the tools they need to help our children and put an end to this tragedy. I thank the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children for their efforts on this critical issue."

"At the National Center for Missing & Exploited Children, we know that AMBER Alerts are often critical in the safe recovery of an abducted child," said NCMEC President and CEO John Clark. "The AMBER Alert in Indian Country Act of 2017, sponsored by Senator John McCain, will help improve and lead to the expansion of the AMBER Alert system on Native American reservations, and we are proud to lend our support to the Senator on this important piece of legislation."
