Hopi Tribe PRESS RELEASE

Water sustains Hopi life. The Little Colorado River stream adjudication began in 1978 to determine conflicting water rights in the basin. The stream adjudication involves the Hopi Tribe, the Navajo Nation, the United States, non-Indian communities (such as Flagstaff, Winslow, Show Low, Snowflake, Springerville, St. John, and Holbrook), commercial and industrial interests (such as Salt River Project and Arizona Public Service), and numerous other individual and commercial interests. There are many competing demands for water. The stream adjudication is designed to quantify claimants' water rights, both federal and state law rights, and to determine claimants' priority to the limited water supplies in the Little Colorado River basin. As the Little Colorado River stream adjudication does not involve claims to the Colorado River, which is outside the basin, the Hopi Tribe's claim to Colorado River water is not part of this adjudication.

Although the Little Colorado River stream adjudication began forty years ago, the rights of the claimants to water have not yet been determined. The Hopi Tribe's water rights in the Little Colorado River basin will be the first to go to trial in Arizona state court.

The Hopi Tribe's water rights will be tried in several phases. The first trial begins on September 11, 2018. In the first phase, the court will hear testimony about the Hopi Tribe's past and present uses of water in the Little Colorado River basin. The second trial begins December 2019. In the second phase, the court will hear testimony about the amount of water necessary for the Hopi Reservation to serve as a livable and permanent homeland for future generations. A third trial for the ranch lands south of the Hopi Reservation will likely be set in 2020 or later. The judicial proceeding will determine water rights for our children and

Over the past several decades, Hopi has made good faith efforts to settle water rights in the Little Colorado River basin. Historically, water rights for Native American tribes settle with the U.S. Government providing water and water infrastructure to Native American tribes consistent with its trust obligations. Water and infrastructure are essential to the Hopi Tribe's future survival. To date, efforts to resolve Hopi Tribe water rights in the Little Colorado River basin by settlement have been unsuccessful.

Recent settlement efforts have been frustrated by the Navajo's unwillingness to recognize the Hopi Tribe's need to access off-reservation water resources to create a sustainable and permanent homeland for Hopi people. Due to actions of the U.S. Government, the Hopi Tribe is surrounded by the Navajo nation. The Navajo Nation has stated in court that it will never grant Hopi an easement to bring water across the Navajo Nation Reservation to the Hopi Reservation and the state court has, on a motion filed by the Navajo Nation, ruled that the Hopi Tribe has no right to access off-reservation water resources for its people. The Hopi Tribe will appeal this ruling. As the Hopi Tribe enters another year of long sustained drought on its reservation, the Hopi Tribe will continue to seek review of this truly unjust court decision and will continue to seek a settlement that recognizes the Tribe will need access to off-reservation water resources for its people.

In trial, the long history and unique culture of the Hopi Tribe in Arizona will be presented by both witnesses and documents. Over a millennium, the Hopi Tribe has endured enormous hardships to sustain its way of life and developed a unique agriculture to sustain itself in a harsh and dry environment. There is still a long road and many trials ahead before resolution of all claims. At each step of the way, the Hopi Tribe will continue to seek a just resolution of claims with its neighbors in the Little Colorado River grandchildren. basin.

Little Colorado River Settlement Trials Begin for the Hopi Tribe First Week Report

By Office of the Chairman PRESS RELEASE

The Hopi Little Colorado River water rights trial began September 11, 2018. Several members of the tribal government, including the Chairman Energy Committee, were present.

The trial began with opening statements by the lawyers. The Hopi water rights trial has past and present water uses. Future water rights are set for a December 2019 trial; and water rights on the new Hopi ranch lands south of I-40 will be set for trial in 2020 or after.

The opening statements and members of the Water and highlighted differences between the Hopi Tribe and the objectors who are the Navajo Nation, the State Land Department, the Little Colorado River Association, Salt River Project and the City of Flagstaff. The Hopi Tribe intends to introduce evidence of tribal history, culture, religion, hydrology and past water uses. The objectors want to limit the trial to what Hopi currently uses by way of water, putting off all evidence of tribal history, culture, religion, hydrology and past water uses to the next trial in December 2019.

Her testimony was flowed into broad alluvial fans limited to the time of U.S. sovereignty, which starts with the Treaty of Guadalupe Hildago in 1848 when Mexico transferred sovereignty to the United States. The Hopi Reservation was created in 1882, and Ms. Norton testified the Reservation was created to protect Hopi from encroachment from the Mormons, the Navajos, and other white settlers brought into the region by the railroad. She reviewed historical BIA records in which government officials concluded the lack of surface water represented a major challenge to the Tribe's economic advancement. She concluded that the federal government's policy toward Hopi vacillated between moving Hopi to water (by asking the Hopi to move to the Little Colorado River) or bringing water to the Hopi on the Mesas.

Ms. Norton gathered records from the national archives, including several historical records of the Irrigation Service of the BIA. These records show that the incising of the arroyos began in the latter The first witness was Hana half of the nineteenth centu-Previously, the washes the Hopi Reservation,

The BIA constructed several projects, like dam and wash spreaders, to bring the waters back over Hopi lands. The BIA also did construction projects like larger concrete dams, but many of them failed over time.

The second trial witness was Neil Blandford, a hydrologist from Daniel B. Stephens & Associates who has worked for the Hopi Tribe for twenty years. He testified about the water resources on the reservation: surface waters from the washes, and the aquifers on the reservation. Essentially, he testified that the only good drinking water comes from the N aquifer (except for where there is naturally occurring arsenic!). The T aquifer provides for many of the springs on and around the Mesas, and the D aquifer provides for much of Hopi livestock. GUEST EDITORIAL Hopi Tribe Economic Development Corporation Update

By Chuck Thompson, CEO Guest Editorial

As CEO of the Hopi Tribe Economic Development Corporation (HTEDC), I am very pleased to have been asked to share information about the HTEDC, which I view as an important asset to the Hopi People. As many of you know, the HTEDC manages for profit properties for the Hopi Tribe. Currently we manage and operate the Hopi Cultural Center, Walpi Housing, Days Inn by Wyndham Sedona (formerly Kokopelli), Heritage Square, Continental Plaza, Kachina Square and the Hopi Travel Plaza. All these properties have been owned by Hopi for many years some dating back before 2000.

In 2015, a new HTEDC Board of Directors was put in place, and I was hired to be CEO. At that time, the properties managed by the HTEDC were in pretty sad condition. In most cases, they definitely were not properties that the Hopi People could view with pride. The properties had not been maintained; roofs leaked; parking lots had pot holes; buildings needed painting; in many cases staff had not been trained; vacancies were high, all resulting in several of the properties suffering annual operating losses.

Beginning in 2015, and continuing to today, our primary task has been to accomplish the needed repairs; improve occupancy at Hopi properties; and get the businesses operating profitably. This has required much support from the HTEDC Board and much hard work on the part of our dedicated employees at all the Hopi businesses. I am pleased to report that our efforts are beginning to produce nice results. And in 2016 and 2017 the HTEDC has been able to pay Hopi an annual dividend.

With the changes made so far, the HT-EDC is now reaching a point where it can begin to consider new opportunities to generate sustainable. Long term income for the Hopi people. With the closing of the NGS plant, our efforts take on even greater importance and urgency.

In late 2017, when the possible fate of NGS began to be publicized, the HTEDC began working closely with teams at Hopi to identify projects that could help replace some of the income lost by Hopi with the closing of NGS. Our efforts to this end involve conducting the initial review of projects presented by outside companies to Hopi to insure that the projects presented are feasible and that the companies have sufficient financing and resources to implement their ideas. Members of the HTEDC management P: 928.522.8675 team also serve on the Hopi Economic F: 928.522.8678 Development Board to further assist in Cthompson@htedc.net these efforts.

Independent of Tribal efforts, the HT-EDC also has several projects underway to potentially help bring future income to Hopi. In late 2017, and again in 2018, the HTEDC applied for and received Federal funding to begin planning an establishing a business incubator on the Hopi Reservation aimed at helping Hopi interested in starting a business. This incubator will be up and running in 2019. It will help interested Hopi to development business plans and provide basic training in operating a business. As part of this initiative, the HTEDC is also in the process of establishing a lending arm, known as a CDFI, which will provide low interest rate funding to help the Hopi People actually start a business.

As many of you know, Hopi also owns a lot of property along the I-40 corridor between Winslow and just east of Flagstaff. For the past several months representatives from the HTEDC and Hopi have been actively involved in working with companies who have a potential interest in building projects of various types which, if successful, would result in long term leasing of Hopi land. This has the potential of being a very good source of income for Hopi.

To replace the potential income loss from the closing of the NGS plant is not an easy task. Most, likely it will require many different projects. So, at this point, all ideas must be explored. The HTEDC is pleased to be able to help in those efforts.

Throughout the year, I have the opportunity to meet with several of the Villages and their CSA's. Often, these meetings begin with the statement that we don't know what the HTEDC does or how it is doing. This surprises me, since we have made a real effort to provide information when requested. Each April, the HTEDC makes an annual report to Tribal Council. The information provided at this meeting is available to the Hopi people. As mentioned, we speak with the CSA's whenever asked. And, we even respond to requests from the Hopi Tutuveni. The HTEDC is proud of what we have been able to accomplish. We are proud of the facilities that we diligently manage for Hopi. And, we are proud of the new opportunities that we are striving to bring to Hopi. Sincerely, Chuck Thompson CEO

DROUGHT UPDATE

The Hopi Reservation has been going through drought for at least 23 years now. We are thankful for the rains however this will not do away with the damage the drought has done to our land base. Currently we are still in "Exceptional" Drought conditions. Executive Order #02-2018 - Exceptional Drought Conditions is still in effect and will be in effect until we get enough moisture to help replenish our land base. The Office of Range Management (ORM) is working with the Hopi Tribe's Drought Task Team to help reduce some of the stressors put on our land base in addition to that caused by the drought conditions. Currently mandates that are in effect are:

- 30% reduction in livestock allocations
- Removal of all of this year's calves. meaning any yearling heifers and steers
- Removal of all cull cattle and non-productive cows

These mandates will stay in effect until the Executive Order is lifted and range conditions change for the better. The DNR programs will continue to monitor the range conditions and provide this information to the Drought Task Team and the public.

HOPI PARTITIONED LAND LIVE-STOCK COUNT

The ORM along with help from Hopi Resource Enforcement Services (HRES) and Office of Hopi Lands Administration (OHLA) has completed the 2018 Hopi Partitioned Lands (HPL) Livestock Count for HPL and Moenkopi. We would like to thank those ranchers who participated in the count and for decreasing your allocation numbers to meet the 30% reduction. Your awareness of what is occurring on your land base due to drought is appreciated. This year it showed that vegetation production and water were a big concern and that you made the adjustments in the proper manner. For those of you who did not comply we suggest you get with the program and comply so you won't be cited again for non-compliance under Ordinance 43.

DISTRICT SIX LIVESTOCK COUNT The ORM has completed the 2018 livestock counts for HPL and Moenkopi. We will now be moving on to District Six. Letters are being mailed out to the ranchers with grazing permits and information about the count is being posted in public areas. Please take the time to look at the schedule to see when we will be in your range unit to count livestock. (See D6 Livestock Schedule at end of article)

Tawa'ovi Community Development

Team Meets on Hopi

By Romalita Laban Managing Editor

The Tawa'ovi Community Development Team decided at the August 17, 2018 meeting that Andrew Gashwazra, Director Hopi Tribe Office of Community Planning and Economic Development will continue to serve as Chairman of the Team and provide the role as the avoidance of the re-creation of a legal Project Manager, as well.

By consensus, the Team determined until Action Items are ready for presentation and approval in the short term and for the sake of getting much needed work accomplished before the Tawa'ovi Community Development Corporation is established, this would be the most effective and efficient path to take.

Hopi Tribal Council appointed two Tribal Council representatives to be on the Team. Bruce Fredericks, Upper Village of Moencopi Representative and Herman Honanie, Village of Kykotsmovi Representative will serve as appointed Tribal Council Representatives to the Team.

Office of Real Estate Services updated the Team regarding the Permission to Survey which will be issued on August 20, 2018. It was further determined that Navajo Tribal Utility Association (NTUA) will need to follow up with Hopi Agency in Keams Canyon, Ariz. to locate the Right of Way application completed in 1993. Leroy Shingoitewa, Team participant updated the Team about his conversations with Bureau of Indian Affairs staff who explained to him that they were not aware of any permit being issued but that further research could be completed with more information provided.

Tim Bodell, Utility Director - Hopi Utilities Corporation explained that his understanding was that NTUA has produced a copy of a full application and was dated/received stamped by BIA in 1993.

Further discussion regarding part of the power alignment will be a segment that may need to be considered separately and the Team will need BIA's Record of Grant of Easement prior to further development. It was also discussed that NTUA was informed by Office of Real Estate Services to follow up with the Hopi Agency to find a permit number.

Discussion around encouraging description for the area if it was determined one had already been completed. The Team also determined to encourage NTUA to check into Phoenix or Albuquerque offices where records may be available. Office of Real Estate Services staff explained scenarios and steps which would need to occur if the approved application can't be found

The Team discussed a Plan B is to start working on a new document if needed. Daniel Honahni, Hopi Tribe Executive Director stressed the need to make sure planning includes future options to tie the Tawa'ovi development in for completion. Overall the $2.2 Million which was for housing was never processed so it can't be included in Chart of Accounts. At this point, however, the budget for the Tawa'ovi Community Development project will be $1,091,685.57 and which is referenced in the resolution.

A recommendation by a Team member was that a site visit of the area be scheduled for the next meeting and in consideration of future discussions for the well and power lines. Based on set up of terms there will be 7 members. Other candidates can submit a letter interest.

Mr. Blandford also testified about historical pumping of water for the villages from the N aquifer, and challenges to drinking water from contamination in the Moenkopi area and in naturally occurring arsenic in the First and Second Mesa wells.

The week ended with the U.S. Government calling Chris Banet, who is the BIA official overseeing Indian Water Right trials and settlements in the Southwest. His testimony will continue in the second week of trial.

The Hopi lawyers are strongly encouraging Hopi Tribal members to come down and be present at the trial. The Hopi representatives were seated in the jury box; so, there are comfortable seats!

Judge Throws Out Challenge Against Hopi Tribe Chairman

By Felicia Fonseca ASSOCIATED PRESS

FLAGSTAFF, ARIZ. (AP) - The chairman of the Hopi Tribe has survived a challenge to his job from a predecessor who alleged a felony conviction should have prevented him from being sworn in.

No one challenged Timothy Nuvangyaoma's candidacy as he campaigned for and after he won the election for Hopi chairman. He entered the race despite a provision in the tribe's constitution that prohibits anyone with a felony conviction within 10 years of declaring candidacy from seeking the office, though he openly discussed his struggles with alcoholism.

After Nuvangyaoma was seated in December, his immediate predecessor asked the tribal court to find that Nuvangyaoma improperly was certified as a candidate. Nuvangyaoma pleaded guilty to felony aggravated drunken driving in November 2007, placing him within the time-frame that should have kept him from the chairman's race.

Herman Honanie also filed a similar challenge against the tribe's election board.

Judge Jeremy Brave-Heart ruled in on Tuesday, saying the case is barred by sovereign immunity because Nuvangyaoma did not act outside his authority as chairman. He also said the court cannot flout avenues for election-related challenges and dismissed the case with prejudice.

"The disruption to Hopi governance would be chaotic," he wrote. "This is exactly why the Hopi Constitution and the election ordinance must be read together to accomplish two purposes: providing mechanisms for challenging candidate certifications, election results, or removing elected officials, but at the same time providing a point of finality."

Nuvangyaoma did not immediately respond to requests for comment at his office and through his attorney.

Honanie's attorney, John Trebon, said Brave-Heart's ruling is well-written and reasoned. He said he hadn't spoken to Honanie to determine if he would appeal the constitutional issue.

"I can't help but wonder if the same decision would be made if it was later discovered that the (chairman) was not of Hopi decent!" he wrote in an email. "Would a constitutional challenge be dismissed because the election was completed?"

A decision has not been made in Hon-Honanie's case against Nuvangyaoma anie's case against the election board.

Objective 2: Systemic Advocacy. Ensure that the federal Bureau of Indian Education meets the educational needs of Native American students with disabilities enrolled in their schools by addressing the general education, special education, mental health, and wellness needs of students, including those impacted by trauma and adversity.

Objective 3: Direct Representation. Provide direct representation in meetings and other informal settings and administrative proceedings to twenty (20) children with disabilities who are not receiving a free appropriate public education in the least restrictive environment.

Objective 2: Promote Working in the Community. Provide direct assistance to individuals with disabilities in their efforts to obtain appropriate vocational rehabilitation services or address employment discrimination.

Objective 3: Decrease Discrimination by Employers. Increase compliance with relevant legal requirements, particularly the new Navajo Rights of Individuals with Disabilities Act, by reviewing policies of government agencies and job applications of local employers to ensure they are consistent with legal requirements.

Second Challenge of Hopi Tribe Chairman Dismissed by Judge

Hopi Tribe Chairman Timothy Nuvangyaoma (Karen Shupla/Hopi Tribe via AP)

Tribal Court judge has dismissed a second case that alleged the tribal chairman was improperly seated.

Timothy Nuvangyaoma was sworn in as chairman in December.

His immediate predecessor alleged he wasn't qualified to seek the post because Nuvangyaoma had been convicted of felony drunken driving within 10 years of declaring candidacy in violation of the tribal constitution.

Herman Honanie appealed what he considered a decision by the election

KYKOTSMOVI, ARIZ. - A Hopi board to certify Nuvangyaoma's candidacy.

But Judge Jeremy Brave-Heart says the letter Honanie relied on wasn't a decision and couldn't be appealed. It was a response letter.

He says Honanie missed the opportunity to challenge the certification and dismissed the case with prejudice.

Honanie's attorney said Wednesday he hasn't reviewed the ruling.

The election board's attorney says it's well-reasoned.

2018 Hopi Health Conference, Promoting a Successful Health Event

KYKOTSMOVI, ARIZ. - The Hopi Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) had its annual Health Conference at the Hopi Veteran's Memorial Center on September 5-6, 2018. The conference was to educate both tribal employees and the public about the different health issues that the Hopi people face on a daily basis and to provide information about where to get help and answers.

On both days, Lori Joshweseoma, DHHS Director provided an introduction, and information session regarding the activities and what was to be expected throughout both days' events. Genell Roland, Case Manager - H.O.P.I Cancer Support Services was the guest speaker for the first day of the conference. "Namitunatya", meaning to take care of oneself, was the main topic of her speech. Roland wanted to inform the Hopi people that they are not alone when dealing with health issues and that there are many in the community who are willing to help out by providing information about health choices. She also emphasized that those individuals do so because of their strong desire to keep community members healthy throughout their years. Another guest speaker during the conference was Maude Yoyhoeoma, Director of the Hopi Domestic Violence program who gave a profound speech about the trials and tribulations of her bout with cancer. She shared how she combated those issues in order to survive and thrive to get to where she is today. Both guest speakers helped to encourage the audience with their moving speeches which led to ensuring the day's events went as planned.

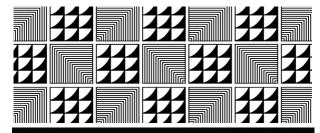

Educational booths from programs across Arizona and the Hopi Health departments were set up at the conference to help educate, distribute information and provide outreach to the Hopi public and the tribal employees. Information about the different services offered as well as where to get more information on the different health issues was provided. While some may describe what was provided as a lot, providers explained that it was just the "tip of the iceberg" of all the information which is available to learn about one's health.

Health officials from the Hopi Health Care Center presented to the public in mini work sessions with topics ranging in the following areas: Heart Health presented by Dr. Kendra Johnson, Women's Empowerment presented by Karen Honanie, Men's Empowerment with Kevin Poleyumptewa, Men's Health with Dr. Brian Winston, and Oral Health with Dr. Margaret Quiller. All of the presenters had information about the risks, dangers, and solutions to their health issues that the Hopi people could take home and inform their families with, too.

With fun, food, and light humor throughout the day both Hopi Tribal employees and the general public were well informed about preventive health issues and how to include the information in one's daily lives. The day's events were closed off with Tatanka Means providing entertainment and some healthy humor. Means told his life story through humor and included a birthday shout-out to a special lady in the audience. He shared his comedy motto as being "Wellness through Humor" which he described as his own kind of medicine. He also wants everyone to know that humor and laughter is a special kind of medicine and his purpose is to heal through humor.

Lori Joshweseoma, stated, "The Hopi Department of Health & Human Services was successful in meeting its overall objective of providing health information to the tribal staff and community during the conference, based on the topics that were selected through a survey provided by the Department. Topics that were presented during the conference included oral health, heart health, and men's health, empowerment and stress management. We would like to thank the Hopi Health Care Center providers and staff for their participation in the conference."

The Hopi Tribal Housing Authority Celebrates Annual Housing Fair

Patrons visit various booths to get information about their homes and property. (Picture by Carl Onsae/Hopi Tutuveni)

By Carl Onsae Assistant Editor

FIRST MESA, ARIZ. - The annual Hopi Tribal Housing Authority Annual (HTHA) Housing Fair kicked off without a hitch on September 7, 2018. The annual fair was designed as a means to provide information to the Hopi public about the application process for obtaining a new home via HTHA's New Home Ownership program, getting on the waiting list for home repairs and improvements and to provide additional information about how to repair homes.

Participants at the fair not only received new home ownership and home care maintenance information, they also were provided food and entertainment. In addition to getting a free meal, participants walked up and down the parking lot located on the south end of the HTHA building, to get little trinkets from each of the booths and to gather more information about how to "winterize" a home.

Entertainment during the event included traditional dances performed by groups from the local villages. The goal was not only to entertain the people but to bring the people closer at the event. A traditional meal of noq'kwivi (Hopi corn stew) was prepared by the local Hopi women to feed the community, as it is traditional done at mostly every event here on the Hopi reservation. Over 12 informational booths provided the community information and suggested ideas about how they could improve their homes to make it a better living situation.

Here on the Hopi reservation, homes that were built in the pre-1930's are still being lived in today, and most of those homes are in need of repair, that is where the Hopi Housing Authority comes in. Bretta Sekayumptewa, Construction Development Secretary stated, "This time of the year our program promotes this type of information to the public and to let everyone know that we are still here willing to help". Within the past 2 years, HTHA has completed and rehabilitated more than 40 homes throughout the reservation, with plans to complete more houses by the end of this year.

However, the wait to get your home refurbished is dependent on getting on a waiting list which was developed in 2014 and closed in 2016 resulting in a wait which in time seems to get longer and longer in the future. Applicants are added to that particular waiting list based on eligibility at the time of their application intake. The waiting list was closed in 2016 with a limit of 95 individuals being allowed on that list. In the Indian Housing Plan, twenty homes belonging to the applicants on the waiting list are allocated funding in accordance with the plan. Being that only twenty homes are included on the list per year, since 2016 no other applicants have been added to the list which is now four years old.

The HTHA is being hopeful, however, and the Housing Authority building crew is looking to complete the projects on the list in the years to come. According to HTHA Resident Services staff, the building crew turns over projects with a 2-3 month completion time frame, per project. Each crew will finish anywhere from 3-4 projects per year, per crew. Sekayumptewa also noted that she is proud of working at a place where helping the community rebuild is a rewarding job and she wants everyone to know that the Housing Authority is always there to help everyone who wants to rebuild or refurbish their homes.

The HTHA Resident Services Department can be contacted for any inquiries regarding program information at 928-737-2800 and more information is available at www.htha.org.

2018 Hopi Men's Nite Out An Event to Encourage a Positively "Manly" way of Living Healthy

By Carl Onsae Assistant Editor

KYKOTSMOVI, ARIZ. - The annual Men's Nite Out health conference, sponsored by the H.O.P.I Cancer Support Services was held on September 13, 2018. The event was to showcase to the Hopi men, ways to a healthier way of living, with stories, sessions, food, and more, the night's event seemed to be a success as participants were expressing much laughter and joy.

Eugene "Geno" Talas kicked off the event with an exuberant filled speech to the men and encouraged them to learn all that they could during their time at the resource fair. The event started with a traditional Hopi meal prepared by women staff and volunteers from the Veteran's Center. Men at the event were provided, paatupsuki (corn and bean soup), with roast beef and watermelon for desert. The men showed enjoyment of the meal by asking for "seconds" which was provided to them. With the men fully fed, the event continued in full swing.

Several informational booths were set up for the men to get information about their health. Breakout sessions were also provided throughout the event which provided the men attending with plenty of information. The sessions, which included Max Taylor presenting about wild edible plants, Stewart Dukepoo presenting about the dangers and smart ways of using tobacco, and Theron Honyumptewa presented to the men about what the implications of domestic violence are and how it is ka-Hopi (not Hopi) and how the men could handle anger in more healthy and non-violent ways. Door prize raffles were held during the breaks, resulting in the men receiving farming/garden tools, automotive tools, and more prizes.

Presenters felt that they did the community a great service by providing the sessions and informing the men about the different health problems that all Hopi men face, while providing a meal and prizes, too. As the 2018 Men's Nite Out dwindled down to a closing, the men went home with more knowledge about their health and wellness and most importantly, how to be a more powerful Hopi to their community.

Larry's Corner

ORLA

By Larry Watahamagee

It's funny to think that we as a society have grown so much, and what I mean when I say we have grown so much, I'm saying we have grown so much in the area of loving TECH-NOLOGY!

Now you might be saying to yourself that technology is nothing new but when you take an ancient tribe and blend it with modern tech you do get something new. Technology is a godsend to some of us Hopis and cats because we can communicate with each other over invisible waves and to be able tell and show each other about important things that matter to us by use this god sent thing called technology. We as a society have used this technology in advanced ways of preserving our culture...NOT! Nah, I'm just kidding, I think we just like to use technology to cause drama, as if we aren't causing enough drama already and we don't eeeven need technology to do that. I think our technology is our new resolution to fighting Hopi disputes, too.

point that we as a society don't communicate face to face anymore, as types of ceremonies as "social dancif our village is so very big that we have to communicate through technology 'cause we are too tired to just walk next door to visit. If that's not enough, our society has grown dependent on the use of this technology even during our ceremonies, like our precious social dances. I was at a social dance, yes, I was on the roof because all those pokos (dogs) were in the kisonvi of a Hopi mesa a few weeks ago. I tell you, once those dancers hit the dance "floor", I saw all the phones, Ipads®, video recorders, and tape recorders come out and everyone hit the record button. One lady set up a tripod with her video recorder and just left for the dance "floor" because it seemed she was probably thinking she could watch it later. Of course, taking a picture of our kids in a social dance is ok for memories, 'cause we've all done it, right? Even when I was a little kitten my mom took my picture during one of our social dances and I still have the picture on my wall. We take pictures to remember the times when our kya'am (aunties) picked us to dance for the first time, and we treasure those memories, and it's ok 'cause we keep those for ourselves to look back on and reminisce, right? But when you share it on social media it could become a problem, now we might have creeps looking at our children and remembering those times with you. Yikes, my fur is standing on end just thinking about it. I don't think I can remember a time we didn't have social media, maybe I do, but when social media has taken over our lives it seems we just somehow lose all brain function of how to remember the past. Now I'm not saying social media is all bad 'cause we can do a lot of good with it if used in a proper way...I know, I know...some might think there is no proper way. But I'm not going to lecture you on why social media is bad for you, your mother probably lectures you anyway, 'cause my mom lectures me about the dangers of social media, even when she doesn't know what social media is. It is true that social media can be "likened" to be a drug and with drugs it can be addicting, too.

Also when you post a picture on social media, it's there FOREVER! I'm not talking about forever until you delete your picture I'm talking about until the end of time forever. Who knows with all that artificial intelligence stuff we may never know how long that forever may be. Someone out there already is probably making a picture collage with your pictures, and they are thanking you for allowing your memories to become their memories in a vicarious kind of way.

Even though social media has become a "watch your back" kind of place, we tend to still post pictures of our social ceremonies on social I tell you, we have gone to the media and think nothing of it. Is it because we refer to these particular ' so everyone thinks it's ok to post es' it to social media? This leads me to another thought about social media. I always wonder why we have a ban on picture taking, voice recording, drawing, etc. that is posted at every village entrance, but yet we tend to break those rules every time we watch a social dance. We Hopis and Hopi moosa, too, have a privilege that we call "Our Culture." I call it "Brown Privilege" and in Hopi people's and cat's minds, it seems we think "we can't get in trouble for that because we're Hopi." So we get away with posting some of our ceremonies on social media, interesting huh? It makes you think that even though we have rules, we only have them for white people when they visit the mesas, but yet when we post it on social media, it defeats the purpose of having those rules in the first place cause we're sharing them to the world and essentially with the white people and all other people. My advice to you is that, its ok to take memories for yourself, you can share them with your close and extended family and friends, but when you want to share them with your friends on social media it creates drama of all sorts and sizes, and that's the last thing we want. Instead of having rules about picture taking, we should revise the rules to say, "Take all the pictures you want, just don't post them on social media". I say, "Meow, let's listen to our elders" cause they didn't need pictures to remember, they just use their minds to remember and focus on being social with those present, rather than being chained to having a camera in hand throughout the "social dance" ceremonies to post on social media later.

FIRST MESA, ARIZ. - The Intertribal Agricultural Council in conjunction with the Hopi Opportunity Youth Initiative, a project of the Hopi Foundation, combined their resources to have its first annual youth summit on September 15-16, 2018. The summit was designed to educate junior and high school students about the different ways Native American plants can be used in everyday life.

Around 17-19 students from Hualapai, Apache, and First Mesa, were part of the youth summit. These students are participants of an ongoing project that the Intertribal Agricultural Council has adapted. Erin Eustace of First Mesa and member from the Intertribal Agricultural Council came up with the idea to have an annual youth summit here on the Hopi reservation to teach students from sources of agriculture and how that around Arizona about the importance of agriculture and how they can make it a viable resource to the Native Nation. Eustace stated, "When I visited the National Summit from Arkansas I saw that there is so much potential ways of agriculture that we as Tewa and Hopis can incorporate to our agricultural ways". The students took a field trip to Hotevilla, Arizona where they were introduced to the terrace gardens and how the women of Hotevilla utilize their local resources to make a successful way of gardening for their families. dents asked many questions about how and when this type of farming began in Hotevilla. With their bottles filled with the natural spring water of Hotevilla, the students made their way back to the Tewa Community Center. There, the students broke into mini sessions to talk, and to learn about the wild vegetation, which was presented by Max Taylor of Shungopovi. Taylor taught the students about the different plants that Hopi still eats and uses today. Brian Humetewa from the Hopi Substance Abuse Prevention Center, presented an insight to how people who are recovering from substance abuse use farming, planting, and

Did you know that the choices your local grocery store makes can have a global impact on the environment? From the types and brands of seafood sold to the way foods are packaged and carried out of the store, oceans worldwide are affected by the operations of grocers near you.

Fortunately, supermarkets across the country have made significant progress over the last 10 years when it comes to providing sustainable seafood options to customers, according to a new Greenpeace report, "Carting Away the Oceans." From advocacy and transparency initiatives to addressing illegal fishing, many major retailers nationwide are improving. Overall, 90 percent of the retailers profiled in the report received passing scores, 10 years after every single retailer failed Greenpeace's first assessment. However, experts say that the momentum of this positive trend should be applied to other areas of sustainability, too.

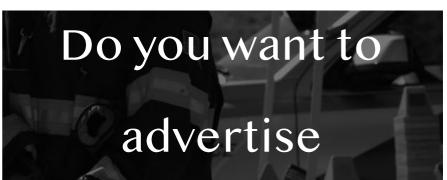

"It's time to put the same energy into tackling the unaddressable issues facing seafood workers and our oceans," says Greenpeace oceans campaigner David Pinsky. "It's not truly sustainable seafood if it's produced by forced labor and then wrapped in throwaway plastic packaging. Supermarkets can use their brands, buying power and influence to do what is right for our oceans and for future generations."

As Greenpeace points out, the equivalent of a garbage truck of plastic enters oceans every minute, and with plastic production set to double in the next 20 years -- largely for packaging -- threats to ocean biodiversity and seafood supply chains are increasing. According to the report, none of the retailers profiled currently have a comprehensive policy to reduce and ultimately phase out their reliance on single-use plastics.

As a customer, you can make a difference by carrying your own tote bag on shopping trips and by asking your local supermarket what steps are being taken to reduce plastic use. Consumers can also show their support for brands doing the right thing by shopping only for seafood that's produced sustainable and ethically. To learn more, visit greenpeace. org/usa/carting-away-the-oceans.

The next time you shop for groceries, take note of both the foods you are buying and the way items are packaged. Experts say that when you eat seafood from ethical, sustainable producers and limit single-use plastic packaging, oceans worldwide will benefit.

gardening techniques to find an alternative outlet for handling their problems, while growing corn, beans, squash, and other plants for their families and themselves while having a healthy mindset.

Insights about how Hopis use their part of tradition has not vanished were shared with the students to ensure they were well encouraged and informed. A senior from Kingman High School, Eileen Gonzales commented on the annual youth summit, "It went pretty good and I learned about my Hopi side"

The youth summit ended with stories and memories about the day and how they could use this type of information in their daily lives. Participants expressed hope for another youth summit occurring next year as there is so much
